Note: Written descriptions of the Ascot Zoning District boundaries vary. Boundary shown is approximate; the actual boundary may have differed slightly, e.g. one source indicates that western edge may have been 122nd and the southern may have been E Burnside.

Appendix B: Aerial Photographs

Description and Sources

This appendix contains aerial photographs and mosaics showing various parts of the East Portland study area spanning the years 1935 to 2006. The table below shows the photo titles, years, and image sources.

Individual images (1 through 5) of selected areas are followed by two sequences of photos showing the same geographic areas at similar scales, over a period of years. Comparisons between images within the sequences allows changes in land use and development intensity to be visually charted over time.

The first sequence of five photos (6a through 6e), from 1935 to 2006, covers an area in the northeastern portion of East Portland generally bounded by the Columbia River to the north, E Burnside to the south, NE 118th to the west, and NE 158th to the east. Portions of the images highlighted in green indicate areas where changes in land use intensity occurred after the date of the previous photo in the sequence. They show, for instance, places where larger agricultural tracts were divided into smaller "gentlemen's farms," or where agricultural land was converted to residential or industrial uses. The highlights are not additive; they reflect only changes from the previous map. The highlights are based on a visual inspection of the photos and not on quantitative data such as building permit or plat records. As such, they are meant to provide a broad impression, not a precise record.

The second sequence of three images (7a through 7c), from 1936 to 2006, shows an area in the southern portion of East Portland generally bounded by SE Division to the north, SE Mt. Scott Blvd. to the south, SE 82nd to the west, and SE 145th to the east (the 1936 photo only shows a part of this area). Land use changes have not been highlighted in this sequence.

Following the photos is a table that briefly describes the coverage and content of two additional series of aerial photos from 1945 (U.S Coast and Geodetic Survey) and 1960 (Metropolitan Service District) covering parts of the study area. These are available for viewing at the Research Library of the Oregon Historical Society, but have not been digitized.

Many additional aerial photographs spanning various years and locations are available from the U.S. Geological Survey. They can be identified by location and extent (in some cases assisted by low resolution preview images) and ordered for a fee at the following web site: http://eros.usgs.gov/products/aerial.html

	Powell Butte Area	The land is forested around Powell Butte. A number of widely spaced farm
21-06		homes, many with long driveways, are noticeable. Most of the area is cultivated farm fields.
21-07	North of 21-06	More forest, rural development, and farm fields like map 21-06
21-08	North of 21-07	Areas of post-war Suburban development with larger yards, especially south of Division Street in Centennial Neighborhood. Surrounding area farm fields rather than forest with rural homes.
21-09	North of 21-08	Post-war suburban development and denser rural development and farms along Stark Street.
21-10	North of 21-09	Older, denser rural development, some smaller post-war suburban development.
21-11	North of 21-10	Large area south of Columbia River large farm fields. Appears to be some industrial development along Columbia Blvd.
20-08	Powell Butte and Johnson Creek area east of 21-06	Some post-war development along individual straight streets off established country roads. A number of homes along Johnson Creek.
20-09	North of 20-08 Area North of Foster along 138 th Ave.	Some post-war development along individual straight streets off established country roads. Rest of area scattered homes and farm fields.
20-10	North of 20-09	Same type of character as 20-09.
20-11	North of 20-10 Area South of Glenview Golf Course	Semi-rural mixed era development. Some small to moderate size post-war suburban development. Still many large lots.
20-12	North of 20-11 North of Glenview Golf Course along Banfield Freeway	New post-war suburban development between Golf Course and Freeway. Still some large rural lots. North of Banfield Freeway still fields. Good examples of landscape before and after post-war suburban development.
20-13	North of 20-12	Still rural with sparse development. Large fields with few trees.
20-14	North of 20-13	Same character of 20-13, only along Columbia River.
19-11	Area around Powell and Holgate Blvds. Along 112 th Ave.	Semi-rural mixed era development. Shows Richardson Village, an large post-war suburban development with ranch style homes Powell and Holgate Boulevards along 112 th Avenue in the Powellhurst-Gilbert Neighborhood. Other smaller post-war suburban developments. North and East of Richardson Village is still mostly rural farm fields.
19-12	North of 19-11 Between Division and Burnside West of 138 th Ave.	Denser development. Post-war suburban streets, still many large lots. Appears to be a new school in the area.
19-13	North of 19-12	Mostly same character as 19-12. Newer large suburban shopping center at the corner of NE Halsey and NE 122 nd Avenue. Both roads are five lanes. A good amount of trees in some subdivisions to the East of the map area.
19-14	North of 19-13 Between Sacramento Street and Columbia Blvd along Banfield Freeway	Probably best example of changes and different characters of the are in 1960.  -New post-war suburban tracts area directly south of Banfield Freeway. Some large subdivisions and also smaller developments  -Dense earlier subdivisions North of Freeway to the West  -Large lot earlier subdivision South of Freeway to the West  -New school just south of Freeway  -Freeway interchange  -Rural development, older. Further south of freeway and to the west.  -Large open fields, North of freeway to the East.
18-12	West of 19-12	Forested areas, large stack of logs at lumber mill visible towards center of map area.
18-13	North of 18-12	Earlier suburban development in Lents, some post-war development with cul-desacs.
18-14	North of 18-13	Same character of 18-13.
18-15	North of 18-14	Mixture of earlier and post-war suburban development. Shows some of the homes removed for I-205. Morningside Hospital (now Mall 205) along Stark with surrounding fields to the south and east.
18-16	North of 18-15 Rocky Butte Area	Rocky Butte, with road but no development. Parkrose neighborhood has some post-war suburban development. Woodland Park development looks somewhat isolated.
18-17	North of 18-16	Mixture of older denser development. Industrial activity evident.
18-18	North of 18-17	Large farm fields, few trees.
