Presenter name: Michael Gennaco & Julie Ruhlin, OIR Group

Purpose of proposed legislation and background information:

The Office of Independent Review (OIR) presents their seventh report of closed investigations of Portland Police Bureau officer-involved shootings that occurred between 2017 and 2018. City Code requires that IPR retain the services of an outside expert to review completed investigations of officer-involved shootings and in-custody deaths. Since 2010, OIR has served as the City's outside expert to review these closed cases and provide their insights and recommendations to the City.

Community impacts and community involvement:

This report is of significant value to our community, especially given the ongoing conversation about the Police Bureau's interactions with the community. It is a thorough review of seven officer-involved shootings and details how the Portland Police Bureau investigated and reviewed each incident. OIR's analysis centers on the quality and thoroughness of the Police Bureau's criminal and administrative investigations. The report identifies continued improvements in the quality and timeliness of the completed investigations, while noting areas of failure to follow through on some previous recommendations.

In the years since OIR began its work, they have met with community advocacy groups, including mental health advocates and members of the Albina Ministerial Alliance, the civilian coordinator of the Police Bureau's Crisis Intervention Team program, and members of the Citizen Review Committee. OIR also met with Police Bureau command staff, a civilian facilitator of the Police Review Board and the president of the Portland Police Association. This public involvement informs OIR staff of the historical context of the cases that it reviews. Stakeholders provided relevant information and community perspective as the project developed.

OIR will also take part in a community Zoom meeting to discuss this report.
