A few months ago I arrived home by Amtrak. Because of mechanical problems the train did not arrive until midnight. To get from the station to my bus stop to go home we had to walk in the middle of the street for three blocks. There was no space to walk on the sidewalks. Thankfully, because it was so late, there was little traffic, but it was clear the homeless had taken over that part of the city as theirs. Please support the plan to end the unrestrained camping.
