Our city cannot do this alone: we need regional collaboration=>more collaboration=stronger recovery. We must work w/ community, labor, & business to recover from the pandemic & build an economy where hardworking families, regardless of income, can thrive. COVID leveled the local economy, but it only crystalized the deep economic & racial disparities that already existed. Our recovery must leave all our communities stronger, & that means bringing all communities in to the local economy as full/equal partners youtube.com/watch?v=9JK4wY...

A system where money determines peoples' ability to get a fair hearing is not just. A system where money determines peoples' ability to get a fair hearing undermines our institutions & makes us all less safe. All Oregonians deserve safety—immigrant Oregonians, too. #orpol #orleg

Our investments: in community-based public health violence prevention, in filling vacant @PortlandPolice positions & body cameras, in transitional housing & shelter sites w/ wrap-around services, in behavioral/mental health services. Like all investments, these take time to take root/grow. I really want to thank our community for their patience. I know these investments will pay off & will move us toward building an inclusive, safe and affordable Portland we all want. opb.org/article/2022/0...

When I joined Council a year ago, Portlanders wanted to transform public safety to be more community-centered, & to work on houselessness w/ compassion. We're doing exactly what we've been asked to do & making significant investments on all these issues opb.org/article/2022/0...

I share Portlanders' frustration that we have yet to see results from our investments. opb.org/article/2022/0...

.@PDXParksandRec has a brand-new Director Park art exhibit by Mike Bennett! The fun piece illuminates our City's efforts to support local artists and activate downtown plaza. Have you checked it out?
