1543

TIME CERTAIN: 2:00 PM - Adopt special design guidelines for the design zone area of the Lloyd District of the Central City Plan and direct the Design and Landmarks Commissions to use the guidelines (Ordinance)

Discussion: Leo Williams, Planning Bureau, described the work of the Advisory Committee and the efforts made to involve businesses, residents, neighborhood associations and other interested parties. He said the Design Commission approved the guidelines on August 15 and recommend Council adoption.

Dean Smith, 3036 NE 19th, Advisory Committee member, said important progress on at least three fronts is reflected in these guidelines. The first is the attempt, through the landscape guideline (A5-6), to ensure that the Lloyd District will have a satisfactory amount of natural vegetation and habitat for small urban wildlife. Second, several key sub areas have been identified for attention, including the connection of public facilities to the Willamette River and the integration of the Civic Campus and the Lloyd Center into the District as a whole. Finally, several guidelines reinforce the Broadway-Weidler corridor as a special retail area.

As President of the Irvington Neighborhood Association, Mr. Smith asked that a special transportation study be undertaken for the entire Broadway-Weidler corridor.

Wayne Stewart, Chairman, Design Commission, 111 SW Oak, said the document before Council is an attempt to balance concerns expressed to the Commission during the public hearings. He noted that the allowable density in the area is very similar to what is allowed downtown.

Diane Meisenhalter, 1905 NE Going, spoke for the Green City Vision group. She called for the incorporation of ecological design into the guidelines in three areas: 1) development of a natural corridor from the Willamette River through Sullivan's Gulch; 2) elaboration of the Holladay Park pedestrian corridor concept from Overlook to Holladay Park and; 3) neighborhood feeder street development with a pedestrian/cyclist orientation.

September 4, 1991

Mayor Clark clarified that the Overlook Park she cited is by the Steel Bridge.

Commissioner Blumenauer said her proposals could actually help solve some storm water runoff problems and that resources may be available to study them.

Steve Rogers, 533 NE Brazee, Eliot Neighborhood Association, supported the guidelines but called for creation of a park in the vicinity of Martin Luther King Boulevard and NE Broadway.

Jennifer Sharp, 2234 NE 9th, criticized the current version of the guidelines as ecologically ineffectual and called for amending the guidelines to replace the current A5-6 guideline with an earlier version written by Leo Williams.

Doug Cottam, Urban Wildlife Biologist, State Department of Fish and Wildlife, supported the proposal for ecological landscaping and requested that all natural landscaping use only plants native to the Northwest.

Marcy McInelly, 6424 NW Winston Drive, American Institute of Architects, applauded the process and recommended passage of the document.

Reuel Fish, Advisory Committee member and area developer, urged adoption of the guidelines as written, noting that they represent a consensus of views without imposing undue burden on development.

Brian Sharp, 2234 NE 9th, noted the dearth of wildlife left in the area due to the loss of green space and asked that something be done about increased traffic on Broadway and Weidler.

Mr. Williams said the Advisory Committee has noted that the ecological issues raised are not special to the Lloyd District but are more appropriate to the City as a whole. However, he said he personally believes a ecological guideline can specifically refer to the district since the Convention Center has made it the front door for the City. He said his compromise guideline stresses that man and nature are not mutually exclusive. He said if his version is unacceptable, he supports Jennifer Sharp's amendment which adds the word "environment" to Guideline A5-6.

September 4, 1991

He also recommended that Council, under Other Considerations in the guidelines, revise the second sentence in the third item to read "investigate the manner in which ecological landscaping can be incorporated in the District". He also noted that the resolution proposed by Sullivan's Gulch Neighborhood Association refers to a landscape master plan between the 28th Avenue bridge and the River while the current proposal refers to the 20th Avenue bridge. He said he saw no problem in extending it to 28th.

Commissioner Kafoury moved to amend the Other Considerations section (page 20) to incorporate the two changes suggested by Mr. Williams. Commissioner Blumenauer seconded. The motion carried. (Y-4)

Mr. Williams then referred to the possible replacement of Guideline A5-6 (page 8) with the "Williams version".

Commissioner Kafoury said she is nervous about doing that when people had worked so carefully to produce the document as proposed.

Mr. Smith said this was the most challenging issue they had to deal with. He said he personally would feel comfortable with the Williams version but that the Committee had reached an impasse on this subject because of concerns about holding business people in the Lloyd District to a different standard than is in effect elsewhere in the Central City. He said there was also a concern that the issue of ecological landscaping is still evolving.

Commissioner Kafoury asked about expanding this Citywide or at least to the Central City area.

Commissioner Blumenauer said he believes the language that calls for natural landscaping falls short of the mark and that at least the words "environment and" could be added to Guideline A5-6.

Commissioner Kafoury asked what the difference between environmental and ecological was.

Mr. Rogers said he thought the crux of the Committee's problem was that they did not know exactly what ecological meant and felt the financial consequences were potentially uncertain.

Commissioner Blumenauer said he anticipates that this will be an issue that will need further refinement no matter what approach Council takes today.

September 4, 1991

Commissioner Kafoury moved that the words "environment and" be inserted between the words "natural" and "landscaping" in the second sentence of the second paragraph of Guideline A5-6. Commissioner Lindberg seconded and the motion carried.

Commissioner Kafoury asked about adding the phrase "which is supportive of both the built and natural environment" from the Williams version to Guideline A5-6 in order to clarify the goals.

Mr. Williams said his definition of ecological landscaping is achieving a supportive relationship between the natural and native environment and the built environment to create a complementary balance.

Commissioner Kafoury moved that the language she had proposed be added to Guideline A5-6. Commissioner Lindberg seconded.

Mr. Stewart said he supports the ecological approach but that in such a high density district there are lots of other issues, such as the spread of tree roots onto sidewalks, to be considered.

Commissioner Lindberg noted that the word ecological is not part of the proposed new language for the A5-6 guideline.

Mr. Stewart said he did not think the Design Commission would have a problem with it then.

Ms. Meisenhelter urged adoption of the entire Williams version.

Commissioner Kafoury again proposed adoption of the language from the Williams version for the A5-6 guideline itself, but not the rest of it. She said she is not willing to tinker further with the hard work of the Committee and the balance they have achieved.

Mayor Clark read the A5-6 guideline as proposed: "Incorporate landscaping as an integral element of district design which is supportive of both the built and natural environment." Council voted to adopt it. (Y-4)

Commissioner Blumenauer said he hopes the Planning Bureau will be able to provide very clear direction as to what this means. He said he also thinks the rest of the City needs to be involved too and that perhaps the Environmental Commission might explore this concept.

September 4, 1991

Commissioner Lindberg called the Williams version very creative and said he hopes some follow up can occur in this area.

Disposition: Passed to Second Reading September 11, 1991 at 9:30 a.m. as amended.

At 3:00 p.m., Council adjourned.
