7. BACKGROUND/ANALYSIS

-History of project – PF&R recently participated in a smoke alarm distribution program sponsored by Washington State Association of Fire Marshals (WSAFM). The University of Washington (UW), through its Health Promotion Research Center is currently operating a pilot research program entitled “Integrated Risk Management Fire Prevention Program” (Program) to reduce the number of fire-related fatalities, injuries, and property loss, by visiting high risk homes and educating the residents about alarm maintenance, escape plans, and fire safety measures.

Under this Program UW will provide up to 500 smoke alarms to PF&R at no cost, reimburse PF&R up to $9,720 for personnel costs, $300 for installation materials, $200 for public education handouts, $200 for printed materials such as posters, door hangers, and flyers, $2,000 for four (4) iPads, and up to $8,000 for media outreach in neighborhood and minority community newspapers.

PF&R would accomplish the smoke alarm installation using the current resources. There would be no additional cost to the City of Portland to participate in this program.
