Mayor and Commissioners,

Like you, we look forward to summertime in our city. Portland summers are made even more special by Portland Parks & Recreation's Summer Free for All program.

Thanks to the support of our generous sponsors and forty-seven grassroots committees from across this city, this year continues the more than century-old tradition of our summer playgrounds and concerts programs, and it marks the seventh year of our Movies in the Park. Thanks to City funding, we will feed 100,000 free lunches to Portland's children, many of whom would not have lunch otherwise.

For every dollar of the City's general fund spent on this program, Portland Parks & Recreation, in partnership with the Portland Parks Foundation, leverages more than $5 in cash and in-kind sponsorships.

Generation after generation, Portlanders have continued this summer tradition. This year, Portland Parks & Recreation has worked even more closely with community partners and the East Portland Action Plan to make sure Summer Free for All is more accessible to all Portlanders. We look forward to telling you more about our outreach and equity work as well as our exceptional programming in this week's report to Council.

Please see the enclosed materials for 2013 and last year's Program Summary.

Sincerely,

Amanda Fritz
Commissioner, City of Portland

Nick Fish
