To Council Members

Dan Saltzman, Amanda Fritz, Steve Novick, Nick Fish, and Mayor Charlie Hales:

This past Equal Pay Day the City Council held a rally to highlight the unequal pay of women and the need for higher wages for our city in general. During that rally it was stated that the minimum wage in Portland needs to be raised, and the state legislature was called to remove the preemption law that prevents municipalities in Oregon from raising the minimum wage for all workers.

You were correct. The minimum wage does need to be raised in Portland. This is an increasingly expensive city in which to live. The cost of rent here is rising at more than twice the national rate of inflation. Rents increased by 4.9% from 2011 to 2012.¹ According to the Labor Bureau in 2013, the average rate of inflation for the United States was 1.6%. However, during the same time period in Portland, rents increased by 4.5%, groceries by 3.5%, The average cost recreational activities increased 3.4%, while the cost of eating at a restaurant in Portland went up by 6.4%. Other sector's of Portland's economy saw similarly high inflation.² According to the "Out of Reach 2014" report by the National Low Income Housing Coalition, a single mother making minimum wage in Portland has to work 78 hours per week in order to afford a two bedroom apartment that can adequately house her and her children. In order to afford that same apartment on one 40 hour per week job, she has to earn $17.75/hr.³ And according to the Oregon Center For Public Policy's Basic Family Budget Calculator,⁴ a two parent-1 child family needs $63,978 per year to have a basic level of economic security in the city of Portland. If both parents work full-time minimum wage jobs 52 weeks per year, a very common reality, they fall over $26,000 short of that basic level of economic security. If that family has a second child they fall more than $30,000 per year short. A $15 minimum wage, on the other hand, brings these families right up to the that level of basic economic security at just under $63,000 per year combined. This makes it clear that for the basic economic security of it's residents, parents, and children that Portland needs a $15 minimum wage.

While we commend the council for calling on the state to repeal the preemption law, what we really need is for this body actually act in the best interest of those it represents. What we need is for you to endorse and actively work toward a $15 minimum wage for our city. The state preemption law, ORS 653.017, actually contains exceptions that allow the Portland City Council to act now to raise the minimum wage to $15 for many workers in our city. These exemptions allow you to take immediate action to 1) raise the minimum wage for all city workers to $15 per hour, 2) to require that all contractors working with the city pay their employees a $15 minimum wage. This would be a positive start that would show your commitment to raising the minimum wage to a living wage here in Portland, and would also go a long way toward's pressuring the state to lift the invasive preemption law.

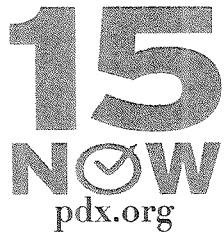

On behalf of your constituents and the workers of the Portland who have rent to pay and children to feed, 15 Now PDX presents 1,000 signatures demanding that you take immediate action to begin implementing these exceptions to the state preemption law and to pass a living wage tax that taxes big corporations and other large businesses in Portland that do not pay all their employees at least $15 per hour.
