

Gentlemen/Mesdames:

If the West Quadrant staff has been told that Goose Hollow wants no height restrictions imposed on new construction in the neighborhood, I am writing to assert that this is emphatically not the case.

I actually live in Goose Hollow, as many (most?) of my neighborhood association's board do not. If Portland's building boom is showing signs of life again, it is incumbent on the city to keep Portland green, and to prevent it from becoming just another characterless American city.

Yours sincerely,

Cliff Weber
