

As a resident of St. Johns, I am worried about the possibility of zoning changed to accommodate the proposed Pembina Pipeline Corporation propane storage facility. There are way too many reasons not to have such a facility near our city. Chief among them is the potential for a disaster of almost epic proportions, especially in the event of an earthquake or terrorist attack. It would be an act of arrogant hypocrisy on the part of the PSC to approve such a change in the face of the overwhelming commitment to environmental improvement and renewable energy that is shared by almost all of Portland's citizens.
