Dear Planning and Sustainability Committee:

The only thing dumber than allowing allowing huge amounts of explosive propane to be stored in an environmentally sensitive area above a fault line in Portland's back yard would be to allow hundreds of railroad tanker cars full of this potentially deadly cargo to roll into town on a daily basis. I think Chernobyl and Fukushima Daiichi both show that Murphy's Law is alive and well. It would be negligent and irresponsible of you to set Portland up for becoming the next New Orleans by approving this project.

Sincerely,

Don G. Reichert
