HR, Historic Resource Review Case Type:

Procedure: Type I, an administrative decision with appeal to the Oregon Land Use

Board of Appeals (LUBA).

Proposal:

Zoning:

The applicant is seeking Historic Resource Review approval for a proposal to demolish an attached garage and construct a new 468 square foot accessory dwelling unit in the rear yard of the subject property. The new building will include smooth lapped siding, fiberglass windows, composition shingle roofing and painted wood trims. Historic Resource Review is required because the proposal is for non-exempt new construction in a historic district.

Approval Criteria:

In order to be approved, this proposal must comply with the approval criteria specified in the Portland Zoning Code (Title 33 of the Portland City Code). The approval criteria are:

• 33.846.060 G – Other Approval Criteria

ANALYSIS

Site and Vicinity: The subject resource is a single story house, described as a WWII Era Cottage in the National Register documentation for the Irvington Historic District. The house was built in 1942, within the period of significance, and is evaluated as contributing to the character of the district in spite of being clad with vinyl siding.

Platted in the late Nineteenth Century, today's Irvington Historic District represents the first additions to Portland that employed restrictive covenants from the outset. These included the exclusion of most non-residential uses from the interior of the neighborhood, and where non-residential uses were allowed, such as the fire station and the telephone exchange, the buildings were purposely disguised to appear more residential in character. Other deed restrictions excluded minority groups, established uniform front setbacks, and required minimum expenditure on new buildings. The area developed generally from southwest to northeast and its growth was greatly influenced by the installation of streetcar lines that introduced an easy commuting option to downtown.

The contributing resources in Irvington range in design character from expressions of the late Victorian Era styles, especially Queen Anne, through the many Period Revival modes of the early decades of the Twentieth Century, to a few early modernist examples. There is also a wide diversity in the sizes of lots and houses. In terms of the streetscape, the numbered north-south avenues in Irvington vary dramatically in width, and they mostly form rather long block faces which the houses generally face. The named east-west street block faces are more consistent in length, almost all being traditional 200' Portland blocks. All are lined with mature street trees. Original development in many cases included garages or other accessory structures, typically facing side streets on corner lots and accessed by a variety of driveway types on mid-block sites. Garages that were added within the historic period, were sometimes built at the sidewalk and/or out of architectural character with the house.

Zoning: The single-dwelling zones, including R5, are intended to preserve land for housing and to provide housing opportunities for individual households. The zones implement the comprehensive plan policies and designations for single-dwelling housing.

The Historic Resource Protection Overlay zone protects certain historic resources in the region and preserves significant parts of the region's heritage. The regulations implement Portland's Comprehensive Plan policies that address historic preservation. These policies recognize the role historic resources have in promoting the education and enjoyment of those living in and visiting the region. The regulations foster pride among the region's citizens in their city and its heritage. Historic preservation beautifies the city, promotes the city's economic health, and helps to preserve and enhance the value of historic properties.

Land Use History: City records indicate no prior land use reviews for this site:

Public Notice: A "Notice of Proposal in Your Neighborhood" was mailed January 14, 2014, and a revised notice was mailed on January 21, 2014.

Agency Review: None of the notified Bureaus has responded with issues or concerns.

Neighborhood Review: Two written response has been received from either the Neighborhood Association or notified property owners in response to the proposal.

• Dean Gisvold, on behalf of the Irvington Community Association, wrote on February 4, 2014, expressing concern about the proposed fiberglass window material and that the window sashes on the proposed accessory dwelling unit are not divided horizontally into two panes as those on the primary structure are.

• Sarann Beson wrote on February 5, 2014 also objecting to the sash type proposed, and to the small size of the proposed accessory dwelling unit.

Staff Response: The provisions of 33.205 Accessory Dwelling Units include a requirement that the windows "match those in the house, attached house, or manufactured home in proportion (relationship of width to height) and orientation (horizontal or vertical)." As architectural terminology the word "proportion" is generally understood to refer to approximate relationships rather than exact mathematical ratios. The provision is also ambiguous because the primary structure can, and in this case does, have windows of various proportions. When code language is unclear reference to the purpose statement at the beginning of the section can often lend clarity, and in this case the relevant purpose is to "ensure that accessory dwelling units are compatible with the desired character and livability of Portland's residential zones." In this case the desired character is retention of historic character and, when new elements are added, compatibility and subordination. See the findings below for further discussion.

ZONING CODE APPROVAL CRITERIA

Chapter 33.846.060 - Historic Resource Review

Purpose of Historic Resource Review

Historic Resource Review ensures the conservation and enhancement of the special characteristics of historic resources.

Historic Resource Review Approval Criteria

Requests for Historic Resource Review will be approved if the review body finds the applicant has shown that all of the approval criteria have been met.

Findings: The site is within the Irvington Historic District and the proposal is for non-exempt treatment. Therefore Historic Resource Review approval is required. The approval criteria are those listed in 33.846.060 G – Other Approval Criteria.

Staff has considered all quidelines and addressed only those applicable to this proposal.

33.846.060 G - Other Approval Criteria

- 7. Differentiate new from old. New additions, exterior alterations, or related new construction will not destroy historic materials that characterize a property. New work will be differentiated from the old.
- 8. Architectural compatibility. New additions, exterior alterations, or related new construction will be compatible with the resource's massing, size, scale, and architectural features. When retrofitting buildings or sites to improve accessibility for persons with disabilities, design solutions will not compromise the architectural integrity of the historic resource.
- 10. Hierarchy of compatibility. Exterior alterations and additions will be designed to be compatible primarily with the original resource, secondarily with adjacent properties, and finally, if located within a Historic or Conservation District, with the rest of the district. Where practical, compatibility will be pursued on all three levels.
 - Findings for 7, 8, and 10: The proposed new accessory dwelling unit is small, and while it takes design cues including overall size, roof pitch and type, and siding style from the primary structure, it is subtly differentiated by the use of a slightly different window type, one-over-one double hung units as opposed to the two-over-two units on the house. The proposed windows have the same general proportions and orientation as the various window types on the primary structure. The constituent elements of the windows, while made of fiberglass, have a scale and dimensions similar to traditional wood windows and the proposal is to install them within the wall depth rather than at the surface as current building practice would dictate. The siding, a smooth, painted composite board material is very similar in exposure and appearance to the siding on the primary structure. These elements help the proposal to achieve the desired balance between compatibility and differentiation. Compatibility with the historic district is further bolstered by the fact that the new structure will be difficult to see from the public right-of-way due to its small size and obscured location behind the larger existing house. These criteria are met.

DEVELOPMENT STANDARDS

Unless specifically required in the approval criteria listed above, this proposal does not have to meet the development standards in order to be approved during this review process. The plans submitted for a building or zoning permit must demonstrate that all development standards of Title 33 can be met, or have received an Adjustment or Modification via a land use review prior to the approval of a building or zoning permit.

CONCLUSIONS

The purpose of the Historic Resource Review process is to ensure that additions, new construction, and exterior alterations to historic resources do not compromise their ability to convey historic significance. This proposal meets the applicable Historic Resource Review criteria and therefore warrants approval.
