1 Anonymous	Oppose	It appears that this city council is not prioritizing efficient government operations. Despite refusing to mandate the return of city employees to the office, the city continues to allocate millions of dollars to maintain, pay utilities, and provide office spaces for city employees and agencies. Since the implementation of work-from-home arrangements, city employees have demonstrated reduced productivity. This can be observed in the varying workloads of different agencies, which have not been completed as swiftly as before the work-from-home transition.	No	01/14/25 3:50 PM
