Well the thing he is promoting is actually very great. It's the access levy that gives a discount to get services at the rec center. I get 75% off the otherwise $140 a month I would have to pay for son to go to preschool there.

Last week we celebrated the unveiling of #muralartist Amaranta Colindres' new creation at the Volunteers of America Oregon Marie Smith Center for older adults. The mural captures the history and spirit of the Albina neighborhood, showing people coming together to live the good life. Thx to Commissioner Carmen Rubio, LaRhonda Steele and Friends, Mississippi Records, Portland, AARP Oregon, Volunteers of America and many others who joined the celebration and have supported this valuable community-building and community-preserving work.

"This decision is a strong signal to industry that Portland will work with partners towards cleaner air and less dependence on fossil fuels," said Commissioner Dan Ryan. "I am confident that these terms are a step in the right direction. I also expect Zenith to maintain compliance—with full transparency to the community—to ensure the agreements made in this Land Use Compatibility Statement are actualized. I will continue working with Commissioner Carmen Rubio and all of City Council to advance real solutions to our climate crisis. This is an example of action fulfilling the promises of our 2035 Comprehensive Plan—thank you to the Bureau of Development Services (City of Portland), Bureau of Planning and Sustainability, the City Attorney's Office, and my colleagues on City Council for your hard work navigating a clean and green future for all Portlanders."

housing over everything first. We literally have people living in their own filth and getting diagnosed with diseases from the 18th century. They take up space in areas that are not deemed livable. This is our greatest challenge. One quick look around and One does not see enough transportation needs for everyone. We need housing yesterday last week last year last decade. All I want you to do is housing. Everything else is fluff. Who is affected by climate change Dan? The houseless.

Yesterday, Portland City Council celebrated Latinx Heritage Month, recognizing the rich and diverse cultures, traditions, and histories of Latinx people, as well as their important contributions to the City, State, and Country. I want to thank my friend and colleague Commissioner Carmen Rubio for being open and vulnerable with us today and bringing her life experience to the dais. Commissioner Rubio's passion, integrity and steady collaborative spirit are just one of the many reasons why this City Council has been moving policy for our community.

I want to acknowledge three incredible Latinas on my team: my Chief of Staff Kellie Torres, my Senior Policy Advisor Karen Guillén-Chapman, and the City's Houselessness Strategies Manager Chariti Montez. Your dedication, counsel, and values are invaluable to me and vital for Portland.

And I want to thank the Latinx PDX Affinity Group and the many city staff who shared perspectives, experiences, and culture with Portlanders in Council Chambers.

Happy Latinx Heritage Month, Portland! I hope everyone takes the time to learn more about Latinx Heritage and support Portland's Latinx-owned businesses.

Commissioner Jo Ann Hardesty
to Commissioner Carmen Rubio
Aug 24 2022 11:39 PM

I voted for the iteration of these climate protections that came to Council in 2019 and fully support today's action. Grateful for the leadership of Commissioner Carmen Rubio as Portland takes another step towards combating climate change locally.

"As we work to make our community safer, the first step is to make sure that the situation does not get worse," said City Commissioner Carmen Rubio during a council meeting Thursday. "Continuing to allow new fossil fuel terminals and new fossil fuel storage tanks increases the risk of the surrounding industrial district, the Willamette River, and the entire city."

The number one problem in the environment is the extreme drug, homeless, mental crisis that you're way far less or should I say you're NOT concerned than climate change and encouraging hatred to law enforcement.

Jo Ann, go look at PPB's annual report. Violent crimes are up almost 50% since you've gone on your anti-law enforcement, defund the police rhetoric. Do you see now what taking away 18 million dollars from ppb did?? And blacks are NOT targeted, maybe your mission should be educating your community instead of attacking police.

We were 20 feet away from walking into this when it happened last night, like so many other Portlanders trying to enjoy the nice weather over the past months/days/minutes that a shooting happens in the Portland area. We really no longer feel that we can support beloved downtown businesses safely. Just another voice asking you to do something about #gunviolence. I know it's all over the country but we can start here. Portland City Council approval is the final step in the Portland Clean Energy Fund grant making process.

$111 million across 65 grants means this current cycle will be PCEF's biggest impact to date.

This is what climate justice looks like!

Here are some examples of projects recommended for funding:

- Converting affordable housing at Hacienda CDC from fossil fuel heating to efficient, affordable heat pumps that keep residents cool in the summer and warm in the winter at half the cost of gas heating
- Energy efficiency upgrades that will slash both utility bills and greenhouse gas emissions for low-income homeowners, half of whom will be people of color
- Hundreds of pre-apprenticeships and job placements in clean energy and green construction projects
- Urban garden planting in East Portland to grow food, make neighborhoods cooler, and improve local air quality

Learn more about all the grants in this historic portfolio at the Portland Clean Energy Community Benefits Fund website: <https://www.portland.gov/bps/news/2022/7/6/portland-bureau-planning-and-sustainability-announces-recommendations-portland>

I was pleased to learn more about the latest allocation of funding from the Portland Clean Energy Fund (PCEF) yesterday and most importantly I was thrilled with the progress to improve this system we are rapidly building! PCEF is a first-of-its-kind local response to the climate crisis. And—done right—this is an opportunity for other cities to learn from Portland. Our city prospers when we are seen as innovators, creators, and entrepreneurs.

Let's keep up the good work Portland! We need some wins for the climate, the economy, and our reputation. I look forward to the community-wide indicators that will measure the success of PCEF's work.

Thank you to Commissioner Carmen Rubio for your leadership, and to the PCEF team for your commitment to improvement!

Yesterday I had the pleasure of opening the first-ever East Portland Summer Festival and what an absolute joy it was to see this event unfold. I wish to thank Commissioner Carmen Rubio for her continuous leadership and congratulate the performers and artists for their truly awe-inspiring performances. Thank you to the vendors and our team of interns and volunteers for the awesome work. Congratulations to my team, the Summer Free For All team for their tireless efforts in making this event a success. Lastly, thank you Portland for coming out to support the festival. This is the spirit of Portland and I am grateful to have been a part of this milestone in the history of East Portland.

It has been a heavy week, so this top 5 I want to switch it up a bit. I want to highlight interesting things going on outside this summer!

1. Today I did a site visit at Powell Butte Elementary with Depave. Depave received a three-year, $491,320 grant from Commissioner Carmen Rubio's Portland Clean Energy Fund to complete five Depaving projects, replacing pavement and concrete with shade trees, rain gardens, and native landscaping. Their work is happening at schools with majority BIPOC student populations, and three community sites as determined by a community needs assessment. The project includes workforce development efforts with minority-owned and houseless contractors and expects to remove at least 15,000 square feet of underutilized pavement. They expect to replace this pavement with over 40 shade trees, five rain gardens, and over 7500 square feet of native landscaping. They have completed work at Oliver and Powell Butte Elementaries and will be beginning work starting July 17th at Patrick Lynch Elementary.

2. This Sunday is the Human Access Project's Big Float on the Willamette. Gates open at 10 am, and the innertube parade is at 12:30. Live music starts at 2 pm with Jujuba. I will be there giving a short speech at 4:15 and introducing the headline band, the Dusty 45s, who perform at 4:20. Hope to see you there!

3. True West and Pioneer Courthouse Square have partnered to bring a series of concerts to Portland's living room. George Clinton, Blind Pilot, Father John Misty, Modest Mouse, the Shins are just a few of the acts that will perform from July through September. To find out more and get tickets click here: <https://pdx-live.com/>

4. Starting today, the Oregon Country

Fair is happening outside of Eugene!
It doesn't get much more Oregon than the fair, and they are celebrating their 53rd year. Young and old, Oregonian or otherwise, this event is great and family-friendly. Get more information here: https:// www.oregoncountryfair.org/

5. For those 21 and older, the Oregon
Brewers Fest is back at the Waterfront July 28 - 30. On a sun-soaked July afternoon, there's no better place to sip independent craft beers and ciders with friends than along the banks of the Willamette River, with the Portland skyline as a backdrop to the west and Mt. Hood towering in the east. Whether you prefer Belgians or Blondes, Hazys or Hefes, Pales or Pilsners, Saisons or Sours--make the pilgrimage to Beervana and drink up what the Oregon
Brewers Festival has to offer!

Sad to say, I have no plans of going to lawless, unsafe downtown Portland, where people are still being beaten, robbed, stabbed and shot to death on a regular basis..Enjoy the festivities..

Super cute! I don't know the regulations of what would be considered the parks dimensions. But wouldn't the surrounding mosaic tiles be included, especially since they are themed with the park in mind?

Uvalde, where the police have been trained to emotionally disengage from the plight of all children but perhaps their own. Train them to mistreat minority kids, and they'll soon mistreat yours, and (too often) their own. (#DomesticAbuse rates are so high amongst them, Oregon recently made it grounds for removal.) Bullies don't save lives. Bullies spread misery. #Coddled and taught to say, "I feared for my life" in court, they learned what their union & lawyers taught. #BadApples get promotions +

All of our neighbors have had to deal with houseless people parked in front of their homes that Ted Wheeler, Jo Ann for City Council, Commissioner Mingus Mapps, Commissioner Carmen Rubio, and Commissioner Dan Ryan have allowed in Portland neighborhoods over the last several years.

Last Thursday morning we were horrified to discover this RV was parked in front of our house. Fortunately the neighbor who had been dealing with the RV previously was kind enough to let us know the situation. From the constant stream of visitors it's clear drug dealing was occurring from the RV. Plus the RV had an active septic tank leak.

Thanks to the neighbor's prior reports the police eventually arrested one of the occupants and the city arranged to have the septic tank pumped.

We were pleasantly surprised the RV was gone Friday morning. We didn't see it nearby, but another neighbor from a few blocks away knocked on our door to report it was in front of her house now. We gave her the information we had and continue to report.

Scott somehow bagged up the bucket of poo the RV left in front of our house. And we spent Saturday morning trying to wash away the smell of human waste in his garden.

It's infuriating that the city continues to allow this.

Happy Friday everybody. Here is my Top 5 for the week:

1. This week the Permit Improvement Task Force put forward a council resolution to streamline our city's permitting process and begin the process of making it work better for Portland.

This is the first in a series of good government reforms that Commissioner Dan Ryan and I are championing as co-chairs of the task force. We recognize that an efficient and user-friendly permitting process is critical to the growth of our city and the successful operations of our businesses. We'll continue to identify opportunities for reforms like these that allow Portland to thrive by expanding access to housing, jobs, and attractions.

2. Last weekend I joined my constituent relations staff at the Portland Police Bureau's Community Academy training. We got an up-close look at police procedures, rules and equipment, and role-played a variety of scenarios that officers face every day.

We came away with an understanding of how important and complex police training is, and how difficult their job is every day of the week. I want to thank the Portland Police Bureau for hosting us and providing the community this valuable information. I also want to urge my fellow Commissioners and their staff to attend these trainings to better understand what it is we ask of our police officers.

3. The Portland Film Office, in partnership with Travel Portland, announced the recipients of its 2022 Portland Post-Production Grant Program. Four filmmakers were selected from a pool of 23 applicants, and they will each receive $7,500 each to help finish their respective projects. Our office oversees the Film Office, so we know how important the artistic and economic benefits of a thriving film production scene are to our city. Thanks to everyone who applied. We can't wait to see your films!

4. On Wednesday I voted in support of a resolution put forward by Commissioner Carmen Rubio to accept and appropriate a grant from the Oregon State Historic Preservation Office. This grant will support the continued work of the Historic Resources Program to identify, designate, and protect underrepresented historic sites. A local match in the amount of $15,000 will be provided by the General Fund Historic Resources Program.

5. On Tuesday Portlanders, Oregonians, and people across the country voted in primary elections. Despite an initial low-turnout leading up to Election Day, there was a late surge of voting on Monday and Tuesday that put this year's turnout on par with previous years. Thanks to everyone who came out to vote on Tuesday. Your voice at the ballot is how we continue the process of making things better.

Having gotten an "up-close look" at the PPBs functioning, can you shed some light on why PPB routinely refuses to respond to, or take reports of restraining order violations? You know, the ones that are supposed to lead to a mandatory arrest?

!!Guess what?

Portland Parks & Recreation (PP&R) will open the new, expansive, more accessible and inclusive playground at Southwest Portland's Gabriel Park to the public this weekend, as a regional destination where Portlanders of all abilities can play together.

"Inclusive playgrounds are a crucial part of building a sustainable Portland Parks & Recreation. The Gabriel Park play area is inspiring, beautiful, functional, and a key move towards equity and inclusion in our growing parks system," Portland Parks Commissioner Carmen Rubio.

It does look beautiful, but the heat last couple of yrs unglued the rubber surface on the playground in cully park, and Khunamusk park leaving a burn rubber surface smell and it hasn't gone away. Also, I noticed some of the equipment it is very heavy in the little kids area, and have been broken for a while. These are pretty nice parks, but not practical.

Nice but please don't forget about East Portland. Gresham and Troutdale we all have the same needs.

Liz Hernandez Luuwit View Park in East Portland opened about four years ago and includes a lovely accessible playground and is generally a gorgeous park. I hear ya, but in this case they actually have already done so.

What about North Portland? East portland?There are areas in town with more in need populations than SW KJ Parada North has arbor lodge (I think its called Harpers park) as an inclusive playground. East has gateway discovery. West had none, until now.... This project is meant to increase inclusiveness mostly. Not as an increase in playgrounds...

It would be nice to see something like this in the outer east side of Portland.

Edith Spickerman thank you. All of our new play areas, including the under development project at Parklane Park in outer southeast, have elements of inclusive play. We appreciate you asking.

Portland Parks & Recreation Thanks for the information.

Today, the Thompson Elk Fountain remains a symbol of vitality for the City of Portland and the unanimous decision made by Council today—to restore and return the Thompson Elk Fountain to its original home at the heart of our City's Civic Affairs district—exemplifies the reality that Portland is healing, and that The Elk is a part of the soul of our City, and that restoration of the fountain is undeniably connected to the healing of Portland.

Thank you to my colleagues on City Council for their unanimous support to restore and return the Thompson Elk Fountain to its original home at the heart of our City's Civic Affairs district!

I commend Commissioner Carmen Rubio for her unwavering support of this resolution, and appreciate her leadership and partnership to bring along our friends at the Portland Parks Foundation, PBOT, RACC, Water, and Parks & Rec.

I also want to thank those who contacted my office and advocated for return of The Elk. I especially want to thank those who spoke before City Council today, John Czarnecki, Walter Weyler, Brooke Best, Wendy Rahm, Aubrey Russell, Terry Parker, Randy Gragg, and John Tess. Thank you.

The statue should never have been allowed to be destroyed in the first place. And the domestic terrorists who committed this desecration, along with $17 million in other damages downtown should have been arrested and forced to pay restitution.

Janet Loughrey , But what happened to the 298 million dollars for the homeless people in Portland Oregon. That's the Big question. Then you have Carmen Rubio her campaign was a fruad why because Antonio Lara president for VOZ workers center used a non profit organization too help fund Carmen Rubio campaign that's against the law that's called political fruad I have proof, I have sign documents with Antonio Lara signatures on it. So you tell me is that rite

The fountain could return to downtown Portland by next spring and cost upwards of $2 million to repair and restore, according to the Portland Parks Foundation. Why would you spend this much money on this project? There are so many more important things that could be done.

Commissioner Jo Ann Hardesty
to Commissioner Carmen Rubio
May 11 2022 03:35 AM

It was an honor to recently join my friend and colleague Commissioner Carmen Rubio to answer questions for the annual Government Alliance on Race & Equity that was held in Portland this year. One of the questions we discussed was "What advice do you have for BIPOC government employees?"

"I would say stand firm. Stand firm because the pushback will come and I got to tell you, this is not easy work. Some days I go, "what have I got myself into?" But guess what - the next day I get up, I brush it off and I'm back at it. Because why? Because this is important for the generations that are coming after me.

Native Americans have a saying that we do this work today for seven generations into the future. I personally hope it doesn't take seven generations to fix this, but for me that's a good vision. I may not benefit from the changes that I'm making today, but I know the person that takes the seat after me will and the people that come after that will.

Knowing that the community is paying attention, I think that's the thing that inspires me to get up every day. It's knowing that community members who never had a voice, who never believed that what they said mattered inside city hall - today they know their voice matters and I think that's what gives me the strength to keep going.

On the hardest days that I have, I remember that the NAACP Portland branch is 150 years old this year. If you think about 150 years ago, in a place like Portland, Oregon, a group of people came together and said, "You know what we need? We need a racial justice organization." That just reinforces for me that we are at the right place in history, we are putting down the right lines in the sand and we're saying that now is the time for our democracy to finally live up to what we believe it could be. And we all know we're not there yet, but what we know is everything we do today is getting us closer to that point."

It was an honor to recently join my friend and colleague Commissioner Carmen Rubio to answer questions for the annual Government Alliance on Race & Equity that was held in Portland this year. One of the questions we discussed was "What advice do you have for BIPOC government employees?" "I would say stand firm. Stand firm because the pushback will come and I got to tell you, this is not easy work. Some days I go, "what have I got myself into?" But guess what - the next day I get up, I brush it off and I'm back at it. Because why? Because this is important for the generations that are coming after me. "Thank you to Commissioner Carmen Rubio, Portland Parks & Recreation, the City Arts Program, Regional Arts & Culture Council, Portland Water Bureau, Portland Bureau of Transportation (PBOT), Portland Parks Foundation, and the Office of Management and Finance for working nimbly to respond to Portlanders' request to fully restore the Thompson Elk Fountain," said Commissioner Dan Ryan. "Simply put, the Thompson Elk Fountain centered our Civic Affairs district with welcoming public art—when one came to testify at City Hall, serve on jury duty, and visit with a federal judge, The Elk was there to remind you that you are in a special place, and the fountain base represented our vitality as a community. For countless Portlanders, The Elk is part of the soul of our City, and restoration of the fountain is connected to the healing of Portland. I look forward to celebrating the return of the Thompson Elk Fountain with our community as we heal together."

Thank you for your work on this, Commissioner! Question: why not exempt cars, and instead route them down Jefferson? Having a car-free "plaza" that still allows for people to walk, roll, run, bike, and bus would make it safer, more likely that people can enjoy and take pictures of the Fountain, and would align with the City's sustainability and Vision Zero goals.

Yesterday, a leaked draft U.S. Supreme Court opinion demonstrated that the Supreme Court may overturn Roe v. Wade. Today, the Court confirmed that this opinion came from their halls. This ruling—if enacted—will be devastating for marginalized communities everywhere.

I want to be very clear: abortion is legal in Oregon, and I was proud to join Mayor Ted Wheeler, Commissioner Jo Ann Hardesty, and Commissioner Carmen Rubio in allocating $200,000 to reproductive healthcare last fall that supports the right to abortion. We saw this coming, and we will provide a safe refuge for services. This City Council will continue to use every tool we have to protect the right to choose.

I stand with you, Portland. I stand on the shoulders of women like my mother who fought for this right over decades. I stand hand-in-hand with every neighbor to say you are loved, your privacy is your right, your choices are your right, and we will get through this together.

Kim Jarema short answer is no. Democrats in the legislature have passed laws in recent years that protect abortion access in the state. But the Republicans running for office these days are obviously willing to use and abuse their power, so I wouldn't put it past one to try to limit abortion access even if the legislature has most of the power on the issue. <https://oregoncapitalchronicle.com/2022/05/03/abortion-rights-protected-in-oregon-regardless-of-supreme-court-ruling/>

These are the important investments the city needs to make. Was happy to champion this with Commissioner Carmen Rubio.

I met Ronnie Faavae because of this and am in awe of the work he does.

We are excited to have our Día De Los Niños event this Saturday April 30th from 11am-6pm on Chicago ave between N. Lombard & N. Kellogg st (in front of the old Bank of America building). Día De los niños is a nationally recognized holiday which celebrates children, families and the strive for continued education and literacy. This celebration emphasizes the importance of literacy for children of all linguistic and cultural backgrounds. It is a daily commitment to linking children and their families to diverse books, languages and cultures. Join us and spread the word!

Note: N. Chicago ave road (between n. Lombard and n. Kellogg st) will be closed from 8am to 8pm on 4/30 with "no parking signs" already in place days prior. @pbotinfo

Portland City Council Reacts to One Year Evaluation of Portland Street Response Pilot:

"The resounding success of the Portland Street Response pilot makes our next step clear: it's time to transition Portland Street Response from a pilot to a permanent first response option with the funding required to operate 24/7 throughout all of Portland, as this report recommends," said Commissioner Jo Ann Hardesty, who oversees Portland Street Response through Portland Fire & Rescue. "This is the first major update to our first response system in over 150 years and as a city we should all be proud to have successfully implemented such an innovative and effective new 911 response."

"This is confirmation of what great work is being done by Portland Street Response," said Mayor Ted Wheeler. "Our city has long needed an alternative solution to the difficult reality of so many Portlanders suffering from mental health crisis. Thank you Commissioner Hardesty and PF&R Chief Boone for your work building this team."

"Portland Street Response fills a key need as we build a diversified community safety system," said Commissioner Carmen Rubio. "I commend Commissioner Hardesty, her staff, Robyn Burek, and the staff of Portland Street Response for their successful first year. We now must continue building on these early successes to make this a service Portlanders can depend on for years to come."

"Portland Street Response is a welcome addition to our public safety system," said Commissioner Mingus Mapps. "The findings of the Portland State University are encouraging, and I want to thank PSR staff and Commissioner Hardesty for all their hard work."

"Portland Street Response fills a critical gap that Portland Fire & Rescue and the Portland Police Bureau have requested for years, and PSR is integral to improving our first responder system," said Commissioner Dan Ryan. "I am pleased to learn more about PSR's integration with dispatchers, and grateful that Portland State University is leading the necessary evaluation work to improve our impact and delivery. I intend to further integrate PSR with outreach and assessment systems for our unhoused neighbors through our continued partnership with Multnomah County. Here's to building and innovating with data to guide this journey!"

I had the pleasure of listening to President Joe Biden share a Bipartisan Infrastructure Law and the projects it will help build, right here in Oregon!

A special acknowledgment to some amazing individuals, with whom I got to share this moment with, Commissioner Carmen Rubio, Beaverton Mayor Lacey Beaty, Tawnya Sanchez, Eugene Mayor, and Senator Elizabeth Steiner.

Budget season is in full swing! City Council met today to vote on amendments to the Spring Budget Monitoring Process, or Spring BMP.

Here are the three amendments I introduced and passed:

$2.9 Million to fund the acquisition of land to preserve affordable housing—the City must use every tool in its toolbox to prevent displacement, and this investment will allow us to purchase land for anti-displacement purposes.

$2.3 Million to restore Bureau of Development Services (City of Portland) workforce levels—this request will add 12 FTE to expand BDS capacity and improve permitting, plan review, and inspections timelines so we are ready for full-throttle economic recovery.

$175,000 to begin hiring staff for multi-bureau process improvement efforts—this will jumpstart our permit improvement work to finally fix our broken permitting system.

I was also pleased to support my colleagues' amendments, which invested in a range of issues from community-based solutions to gun violence to Portland Parks to summer events—thank you to Mayor Ted Wheeler, Commissioner Jo Ann Hardesty, Commissioner Mingus Mapps, Commissioner Carmen Rubio, and all of your tireless staff for working collaboratively on this process. Thank you to City Budget Director Jessica Kinard and CBO staff for your hard work, expertise, and leadership. And a special thank you to my team—Kellie Torres, Mark Bond, Darion Jones, Karen Guillén-Chapman, Terri Theisen, and Brooke Gardner—for guiding us through the Spring BMP with grace.

I'm looking forward to investing more to build the future Portland deserves as we finalize our FY 22-23 budget in the coming weeks.

I will take care of the Foie Gras industry. Oh all of you need to ban Foie Gras for all of our guardian angels are Tom and Kim Scholz too. Tom and Kim Scholz are counting on the Foie Gras to be banned all of the planet. I also started a petition to ban Foie Gras just in the U.S.A for starters. Make sure all of you sign my petition and share the petition with everybody to sign too. <https://www.thepetitionsite.com/821/292/686/ban-the-sale-and-the-production-of-foie-gras/?cid=headerClickC2#published> All of you can also share the website is called the <http://www.dtscf.com/> has more info about the Foie Gras bans with everybody in the world. All of you can start donating to that website is called the <http://www.dtscf.com/> too will help more animal protection companies to ban Foie Gras.

St. Johns Neighborhood
Association to Commissioner
Carmen Rubio
Apr 13 2022 03:59 AM

Dear Transportation Leaders,

Below you will see my letter to the City Council on April 26, 2021, on behalf of the St Johns Neighborhood Association. We are soon approaching one year from when the St. Johns Neighborhood Association, which encompasses about 15,000 people, voted in favor of the Frog Ferry pilot program to launch in May 2022 (along with Cathedral Park Neighborhood Association and University Park Neighborhood Association). This pilot program was a beacon of hope for alternative means of transportation for our North Portland Community. It gave us hope that we would be less reliant on the St Johns Bridge, Columbia Drive, Willamette Drive, and continuous-and-upcoming closure of the I-5 bridge. Also, this would provide a way for the 500 OHSU residents in St Johns to commute to their work. We recently learned that the City Council did not push for any funding besides "fortifying the docks," according to Commissioner Hardesty.

Moreover, we learned that Tri-Met denied the committed funding to Frog Ferry due to bureaucratic anomalies towards their reimbursement filing that negates them from continuing with their excellent work. As City and State Representatives, we hope that you can support our efforts in diversifying our means of transportation, allow for federal ferry funding to come to Oregon, and promote the benefits of utilizing our outdoors for a better life for today and tomorrow. I will not be able to attend your meeting due to a schedule conflict, but I would like for you all to once again hear our community's thoughts from last year that are still relevant today.

Our St. Johns Neighborhood Association wants to see visionary and alternative modes of transit to improve our collective quality of life and economy. We need to approach our transportation issues with systemic improvements that better connect communities to communities and challenge the status quo of road expansions. The rapid population growth our region is experiencing calls for courageous and innovative ways to move people and free up our highways for better freight mobility. Our residents in St. Johns often sit in dense traffic during commuter hours, on roadways that hug the Willamette River, which provides the capacity for passenger ferry transit.

River cities worldwide have found that ferries are fast, reliable, and a relaxing commuting option. The river provides an uncongested transit corridor where people can move at a reasonable speed and safely get to work or home while enjoying Wi-Fi and a good cup of coffee. We need to connect districts and neighborhoods that are constrained by overwhelmed travel corridors such as I-5 and the St. Johns Bridge. Currently, 85% of our residents commute to work in single-occupancy vehicles.

Our community strongly supports the goals of equity, diversity-and-inclusion, and we have many low, and medium-income housing, a strong senior community, and 47 percent of our population identifies as non-white.

A passenger ferry stop at the Cathedral Park dock will improve our St. John's Neighborhood residents' quality of life and provide a new transit mode to get commuters out of their cars and onto a refreshingly clean, green, safe, reliable, and relaxing mode of public transit.

We endorse pursuing the concept of initiating a pilot project proof of concept from the Cathedral Park dock to OHSU and ask that you keep us apprised of your progress.

Thank you for your consideration,

A ferry system makes so much sense and would be an asset for people walking and biking. What a great and fun way to travel to downtown and not clog up the freeways driving downtown. I didn't know the frog ferry was being halted.

Dear Portland,

Like many of you, I miss the Thompson Elk and want The Elk back—fully restored—as soon as possible. I shared my view with colleagues months ago, and I strongly supported the Historic Landmarks Commission recommendation. I recently listened to and respect public servants at City Hall who see this as an opportunity to reevaluate the public arts portfolio. I am incredibly grateful to my colleague, Commissioner Carmen Rubio, who is leading a collaborative civil process. My point of view remains that we need to restore The Elk and place it back to its original place at the center of the fountain with as much of the original materials to the degree that supply is available.

Yes, I am talking about a historical preservation stance here.

Prominently located in the center of our Civic Affairs district, The Elk centers the neighborhood with welcoming public art. When one comes to the area to testify at City Hall, serve on jury duty, and visit with a federal judge, The Elk was there to remind you that you are in a special place, and the fountain base represents our vitality as a community.

We all have a list of items that help define the soul of our City. The Elk is part of our soul, and I will advocate restoring it and placing it back in the same spot. Simply put, the restoration of The Elk and fountain is connected to the healing of Portland.

Nothing is more Portland Weird than that street jog around the Elk fountain. It is bizarre that anyone in government would take the wanton destruction of a city treasure as an opportunity to reengineer the street. Good for you Dan. Restore the entire Elk statue and restore our Portland history.

Brook See Not the commissioner's, nor my, point. We want to restore the entire fountain to historical footprint. PBOT and PWB want to put it on a little pedestal to create bike lanes. If they want to do that, it should start with complete restoration then ask Portlanders what they want to have happen in the future, not leverage the violent destruction by rioters to change the historical fountain and statue.

Jim Blackwood Jr. I don't see where they plan not to restore it, other then a brief editorial comment from that blog. I do hope it is restored though!

Jim Blackwood Jr. Yes, I'm familiar. But again, where did you hear they aren't planning to restore it? Your article didn't mention it. Sorry if I haven't "caught up", but looking to.

Brook See See Oregonian or Tribune pieces on the politics of fountains. Google is your friend. PWB wants out of the water part of fountains. Parks is perpetually underfunded. The bike dominated PBOT sees this as an opportunity to get rid of the fountain base and just do a small base and bike lanes. Rubio from the arts side wants to reconsider all statues with woke lenses and has no commitment to the original design. The politics of monuments and fountains here is astounding. Think about why this will take years to figure out. Dan's point above is that he wants the original design.

Brook See Good grief, literally the very first article if you Google it. I'm done trying to help the lazy. You clearly don't want to know. "The city is planning its homecoming for late 2022 or early 2023. Despite restoration efforts, the elk will not stand on the historic granite fountain that served as its base for 120 years." And the Merc, "Bike Portland reports that a smaller base for the statue could create room for an extension of SW Main's bike lane to the planned bike lane on SW 4th." Fini <https://www.kgw.com/article/news/local/elk-statue-returning-downtown-portland/283-e06cd78d-2efb-4a2c-80fc-ba36bc278378>

The elk statue needs to be restored back to what it was. Otherwise, the Antifa thugs win. The city should also make the Antifa thugs pay restitution to cover the cost of what they destroyed. Of course, that will never happen.

While I do appreciate this sentiment, Commissioner Ryan - I do feel the best first step, before restoring this public art piece, is for the city and its employees to actually live up to the ideals that you say The Elk represents. Once the city and its employees can truly allow people to feel that they are in a special place, then it would feel appropriate. Otherwise, in my eyes, it feels like an empty gesture.

I cannot wait for The Elk's return. That will be a day of celebration. Thank you!

Thank you, Dan. I hope you can get two more votes to join you. Please advocate strongly with your fellow commissioners. There is a very strong sentiment to fully restore this iconic and singular piece of Portland's urban fabric.

Joe Teeny racism and those who tolerate it (or do nothing at all) actually have been destroying Portland far more than us who fight to stop it and for equality. Portland has been host to protests forever, we love our amendment rights and we enact them when we see need. Blaming protesters who have always protested is ridiculous. Blame the racists, blame inequality, blame passivism for allowing racism to flourish.

Dawning McGinnis I am of Arab background married to an Indian. Half my family is black. We are the victims of all the racism you purport to protest against. Even had family member killed by cops. We are more familiar with it than most. Destroying the city to prove your not the racist one is not the answer.

Joe Teeny you are not understanding, we didn't destroy the city. We have been protesting in Portland my whole time there, 40 years, and I know it has been happening long before my time. Our city would never have been destroyed without the federal goons coming in and the extreme reaction from PPD. Staying passive when being a victim is not the way to create change. No matter what you believe from the media, this is the actual truth of Portland. We protest because we love our city and everyone should be treated equally.

Dawning McGinnis I'm sorry but being a victim is being a victim. I don't think we will understand each other. That's ok...I don't hold it against you or others except those who damage or cover for those who do. Change occurs not by force and respect not gained by destruction.

Joe Teeny again us protesters did not destroy one thing on purpose other than some temporary fencing. We made beautiful art and tried to enact our amendment rights. Our rights were trampled during these protests. Not one person seems outraged. And we get blamed for the destruction. Absolutely absurd. We saw fascism on our soil, in the USA, in my city. Our rights were taken from us. We were beaten and those federal goons used war banned munitions on us.

Thanks Dan. Couldn't agree more. If we want to move a historic statue, let's move Lady Portlandia. No one sees her on the back side of the Graves building. Let's put her in the harbor, like the Little Mermaid {Den lille Havfrue} in Denmark. Thanks for taking this position.

Brian Robertson I have heard that the artist who made our famous Portlandia made outrageous and incredible demands about her location and other things such as use of her name. It seems like I read somewhere that there are huge contractual demands in what the City can and can't do with that incredible piece of art. I personally agree with you. Imagine what she would mean to this city if she were better placed to grace us all with her outstretched hand with a much fuller, 360* view of the masterpiece.

The Portland Building was the first example of a "tall" office building in the Post Modern style. Michael Graves never visited Portland and put the main entrance on 5th, rather than facing the park, the river and the mountain. Portlandia was added in 1985. She should have faced east, rather than west.

Absolutely. Also, the City should replace the parts of the fountain that workers unthinkably destroyed during the demolition!

Michelle Reinmiller and statements like that is why something as simple as a statute is so important to the healing of the city. It's a great starting point for the people of Portland to come together as one. Dan is one man but your voice is so very, very important to get this done! Thank you.

If Commissioner Rubio is involved, nothing will ever get done. Why does she even need to have a say? She's unfit to handle PP&R and anything related to our city...look at Laurelhurst Park and the mess she has made there. Also, how about you, Rubio and Hardesty take a drive from the airport on our highways and see the biggest issue in this city...the need for urgent, temporary large scale sanctioned camps to get people off highways and streets now. Fluff projects like the elk statue are far from residents and visitors minds when you see how third world we are.

Michael Rosa Dan has started a program to help with the homeless. From what I can see it's a #1 goal of his.

Facebook User

Brad Bivvins Ryan's program of Safe Rest Villages (SRV) plan is long term and a drop in the bucket compared to the scale of what is needed. SRVs have also been flawed from the start in terms of planning and financing. Our city needs immediate, large scale sanctioned camps as Sam Adams has suggested, the exact same thing neighborhoods throughout our city have been demanding for years now. Ryan has (stubbornly) no sense of urgency to address the short term need. That the elk needs a committee to involve Rubio shows exactly where priorities in this council are...and why the likes of Ryan, Hardesty and Rubio are not capable of leading a city in much anything.

i "scale" ! for decades this city has had half-ass micro "solutions" for macro problems. Neither Sam Adams nor Commissioner Dan Ryan will be honest about the data/numbers in the HMIS #Servicepoint t.p.i + j.o.h s waiting list for shelter. plus addiction needs/ data :( hi there Ruthie Benjamin Commissioner Jo Ann Hardesty Karen Crichton Jeff Woodward but to be clear on the statue issue, the giant traffic calming Elk and fountain should be fully restored despite any secret unmentioned desires to straighten the street or run big new articulated TriMet FX bus along the former 4 bus, now bus 2 route shared there by bus 14 . Commissioner Carmen Rubio please up the transparency/public input about what's going on.

Mark Bunch he's been in office for less than 2 years. He had an uphill battle with the city and county. From what I understand the programs just got up and running a couple of months ago. It took Portland a decade or more to get to this point. It's going to take some time to reverse the ship.

Mark Bunch how would you have gotten that property? It's still owned by private business. How would you pay for the services you want to add? Who maintains the showers and internet? There is a lot of pieces to that puzzle that can't be done "right now". I like the idea, or at least the root of it, but you can't just open doors and say come in.

So you have no idea how you would have gotten private property and turned it into public housing or how you would have paid for the additional services? Commissioner Ryan 1st priority was working through the red tape to get the spaces and services that are coming online now. He's been in office for less than 2 years and has finally got some movement. I am sure if you could work on getting your plan moving as a private citizen, nothing is stopping you, it would be a great help. And its hard to ban tents until you have someplace for them to go.

Good. Moving on

Something should be done about the nearby parks as well.

Sean Christopher Hayes the number of tents next to these parks is way down, not sure but possibly zero in this area
... but of course those tents are just somewhere not too far.

The elk must be put back in the place it has been for 120 years. There is no reason to do otherwise.

I certainly hope they found whoever took it down and nailed them to a building by their thumbs.

The city took it.

Joe Longfellow I thought it was hit by vandalizing during a protest. Thought I'd read that. With pictures

Fires near it, but I'd love to see what you saw. I see fires near it. [https://

Listen, I understand if people like the elk. It's neat. But, uh, we have real serious problems. Maybe we put it back as a treat with our leftover money after we solve homelessness and calm all the ridiculous theft down.

Yes, I drive past that spot five days a week and would love to see the elk back. The encampment that was next to it is gone, and I've been cleaning trash up in that park on my breaks sometimes. Portland needs to get cleaned up some more and restored! I almost brought this little deer to take its place for now but thought it might seem like a mockery.

I completely agree, Commissioner Dan Ryan, with your Support for re-installing our our beautiful Portland Elk statue. Now, let's make garbage pickup available EVERY WEEK for 6 months to clean up this garbage hole we call our city and make it look pretty look presentable and lovely like it had for so many decades before. Moving forward we've got to have forward thinking resolutions! Warmest regards and my gratitude, Dr. Rebecca J. Kenney

So good to hear! The elk is such a beautiful part of downtown. We need to be diligent at maintaining our historic roots.

What must be restored is our trust! Us protesters were treat like wartime enemies, had our rights stripped, we're shot with war banned munitions, were abducted by unmarked vans and held without rights. I'm an artist and what really heals Portland is people. We heal our people, we help our homeless, we acknowledge the abuse brought on by both the PPD and federal goons, that's how to heal. The statue will be back up in time, that isn't the issue that means a damn thing!

As a cyclist I can attest that the elk made Main Street the safest one downtown. Makes the traffic slow a bit. No need for bike lanes there IMHO. I would like the elk turned so its rear doesn't face traffic, though....

As a cyclist I can attest that the elk made Main Street the safest one downtown. Makes the traffic slow a bit. No need for bike lanes there IMHO. I would like the elk turned so its rear doesn't face traffic, though....

Thank you to Commissioner Carmen Rubio and Ted Wheeler for organizing a pre-gavel (pre-City Council regular agenda) recognition of the current situation in the Ukraine. As the world watches in shock and horror, the City honors and values the thousands of Ukrainians who call Portland home. Thank you to the The Portland Symphony Orchestra for their powerful performance and Natalia and Tatiana for your testimony.

Climate change has far-reaching implications on trees and canopy cover over time, in turn, trees play a vital role in mitigating and adapting to climate change.

Noting the release of PP&Rs Tree Canopy Monitoring: Protocol and Monitoring from 2000-2020, Parks Commissioner Carmen Rubio recognizes this and supports concrete actions towards a more equitable tree canopy that builds the climate resilience of Portland. Commissioner Rubio also recognizes that the effects of climate change disproportionately impact low-income communities and communities of color.

In recognition of the environmental, public health, and livability benefits of urban trees, Portland has a goal of expanding canopy cover (the area of land covered by trees when viewed from above) at 33.3%.

Step ONE: Maintain the trees that need maintenance and stop cutting your O&M budget to the point that you need to dip into the Parks Levy to do your job. Step TWO: Look in the mirror as noted in the Tree Canopy Report. "The report, conducted by the parks' Urban Forestry team, did not address reasons for why the tree canopy had shrunk, nor did it map out the areas of the city most affected. The bureau says in the report that deducing why the canopy has declined "requires additional study and would allow for more informed strategies for meeting tree canopy goals." Possible reasons the city hypothesized: inclement weather events, trees being chopped down for development, and tree death caused by pests."

St. Patrick's Day is the unofficial birthday of our Mill Ends Park, officially recognized by Guinness World Records as the world's smallest park! However, the tiny park has a huge place in the hearts of Portlanders for the fun, delightful, and quirky #PDX spirit it embodies. Mill Ends Park was recently rededicated after moving a full SIX INCHES west of its old location as part of the Portland Bureau of Transportation (PBOT) Better Naito Forever project. Despite the "enormous" distance it moved (hey, for an 18" park, six inches is a big move!), we trust you will still be able to find it at SW Taylor Street and SW Naito Pkwy. Take note of the park's new cloverleaf-shaped border!

If you run into any resident leprechauns, please give them space - and our best wishes. More on the story of Mill Ends Park:

Two things a government must do. Number one, keep us safe and number two, keep our city clean. The buffoons in office have failed on both. They all must go.. If voters don't make a change, STOP COMPLAINING.

Its Portlands elected officals responsibility to make sure this situation didnt occur in the first place. What has happened far over shadows what happened in the depression with homeless living in the city when now employers are short of workers. If someone needs help get it for them to straighten out their life, but instead the homeless lifestyle is being allowed as legitimate and supported. Sad situation.

Prisoners used to clean up in PDX until some woke government officials decided that was unfair to them. I'm sure nobody asked them what they thought, tho. Maybe they liked being out and about in the fresh air outside? And being trusted on a work crew meant getting out early for good behavior? Or if you have no one putting in $$$ for your canteen credits to buy socks, underwear, treats, etc then even $1.00 a day makes a huge difference.

Kate Macartney they didn't decide it was "unfair" as much as it was "inequitable" based upon the prisoner demographics. Even worse, IMO. <https://www.oregonlive.com/news/2021/03/low-paid-prisoners-will-no-longer-clean-portland-illegal-dumpsites-as-metro-ramps-up-program.html>

Ryan McAlvey So is there any evidence about how the prisoners themselves felt? I think not but idk but I do know prisoners who thought the work crew was beneficial to them personally. People separate themselves into racial groupings in prisons both from peer pressure and safety reasons so that may affect the makeup of the four prisoner crew, too. It's all a moot point though since most of those actually going to prison now have done violence and aren't suitable for crews out in the public. And I suspect Portland voters have supported the lack of enforcement for property crimes, which mostly affect low income residents whose older autos are stolen regularly with no consequences. I don't know if that voting will change as so many PDXers seem to exhibit co-dependent tendencies.

Volunteers should not be cleaning up biohazards or putting themselves at risk for being assaulted by the unhinged drug addicted/mentally ill homeless who are allowed to live in camps all over our city. If our public officials can't even provide basic services to keep our city clean and safe, then they should all resign. What are we paying taxes for, anyway? It always infuriates me when the news media publishes these feel-good stories about volunteers doing the job that our city officials refuse to do, as though it's a good thing.

Portland is my home town and I will always love it. One thing to bear in mind though - and I know this from working with homeless people - not all of them will agree to stay in a shelter where there may be available beds. I literally have had unhoused people say to me, "oh I would never be able to sleep under a roof. Not in a building". The thing is, no matter how many tiny house villages you build for the unhoused, many of them will not participate, preferring instead to sleep in a tent or in their car. I know my words sound harsh, but many of the unhoused suffer with mental health issues. How do you force people to get help, when they don't believe they have a problem? You can't just round them up and haul them into a facility. But if they won't go into a shelter then you have to forbid camping in the city. At least that is how it seems to me. It just has to stop being tolerated. The only other semi-reasonable thing would be to create a homeless tent encampment that is monitored and supervised. As crazy as that sounds. But camping on the street needs to become a crime - dunno how or who is going to enforce that. Just my 2 cents.

Terri Chadney it's very sad. I remember Portland when it was not the weird city. And those long-term Oregonians who are here probably do remember who the true weird city was in Oregon. Ha ha! I have hope for Portland granted it is being abused and used terribly but my hope is that people will lose their fascination with it and leave and of course that will mean the rest of us have to pick up the pieces but that is in our nature as Oregonians. We do what needs to be done when it needs to be done

Rue a reasonable point, thanks for your perspective. I would only add that when they do build tiny homes, they should open them to all homeless, not just certain races (in violation of federal fair housing law), as they've done for instance with "BIPOC Village" on NE Weidler.

Rue Bella Seems true to me given my limited and anecdotal exposure to Portland homeless (houseless). It would seem best to start with those ready, willing and able to live in a safe refuge village, who can follow some rules (no drugs, no theft, etc.) and then work on others who may need more support.

John Stevenson Her "social voice" has led to no results. She's great at criticizing the mayor and commissioners proposals, yet comes up with none of her own. She lacks skills to deal with large city issues that go beyond her staple "social justice" calls and has no sense of urgency in forming short term, immediate solutions needed to address our homeless crisis. I'm a married gay man and can say that Hardesty has "done" zero...our city needs tons more action and less divisive "voices". Sometimes we just need our garbage to be picked up and PBOT, her domain, to remove and ticket broken down cars and RVs off our streets (which she has ignored for years) to make our city safe again. Having a "social voice" is not enough!

LGBTQ civil liberties are being dismantled, let's use caution. The Democratic Mayor of NYC promoted a vicious homophobic Pastor as head of the Mayor's faith based department, we need to be watching, Im a democrAt, to whom is regressing. Rue Bella I also work directly with this population and agree with your experiences. Yes, at the minimum for those who will continue to refuse shelter for whatever reason, a sanctioned camp may be necessary and enforce our illegal camping laws. Speaking from a basic behavioral change perspective, people camp wherever they want because they can, so why should they go to a shelter? If the argument is don't move the homeless around, then yes, a sanctioned homeless camp may be necessary because we will never have enough tiny homes and there will always be those who refuse them.

Our city is in disarray due to a decade plus of failed leadership, with exception of Commissioner Jo Ann, who is the voice on City Hall for #blacklivesmatter and the houseless, she's great on LGBTQ issues too, Commissioner Dan Ryan has been a huge disappointment, Wheeler is out of touch, Sam is a disgrace in regard to houseless issues, Commissioner Mapps is for Mapps, like Ryan he is a whatever strong silent type who loves the gentry. Commissioner Rubio is okay, but the city must have green spaces and a tree canopy and that is too failing so Rubio needs to show she's up to the task. The citizens are not really that involved, a Charles's dickensonianian tale of poor and rich peeps and environmentally regressed. Our pretty city seem lost in so many ways.

Our city is in disarray due to a decade plus of failed leadership, with exception of Commissioner Jo Ann, who is the voice on City Hall for #blacklivesmatter and the houseless, she's great on LGBTQ issues too, Commissioner Dan Ryan has been a huge disappointment, Wheeler is out of touch, Sam is a disgrace in regard to houseless issues, Commissioner Mapps is for Mapps, like Ryan he is a whatever strong silent type who loves the gentry. Commissioner Rubio is okay, but the city must have green spaces and a tree canopy and that is too failing so Rubio needs to show she's up to the task. The citizens are not really that involved, a Charles's dickensonianian tale of poor and rich peeps and environmentally regressed. Our pretty city seem lost in so many ways.

Proud to see PDX leaders like Commissioner Jo Ann Hardesty & Commissioner Carmen Rubio at the front of this movement of city-based actions. What's happening in Texas impacts ALL of us and we all have a role to play in mitigating harm when #SCOTUS overturns Roe in June. We also owe National Institute for Reproductive Health a great deal of gratitude for having the vision of enlisting local leaders to lead new and bold ideas in their communities.
