Bureau of Planning and Sustainability staff will brief the Design Commission on the Draft Stakeholder Advisory Committee West Quadrant Plan on Thursday, June 19. This project is a key part of a multi-part 5+ year effort to update the 1988 Central City Plan and is examining a comprehensive range of land use, urban design, transportation, environmental and economic development issues in the western areas of the Central City. The plan area covers the Pearl District, Old Town/Chinatown, Downtown, the West End, Goose Hollow, South Downtown/University District and South Waterfront. Additional information and project documents can be found on the project web site:

The Draft Plan document can be found within the packet for the latest Stakeholder Advisory Committee Meeting: <http://www.portlandoregon.gov/bps/article/492748> (the draft plan begins on page 61 of the pdf).

At this briefing, staff will review the planning process to-date, identify next steps and highlight several urban design-related issues and potential directions that are included in the draft plan documents. We look forward to feedback from the Design Commission.
